Pam Kluver

Early Intervention Specialist

Howdy! I'm Pam Kluver. It's been my privilege to be the Early Intervention Specialist at Pebble Creek for eight years now. I started the position when it first opened and have enjoyed being part of such an amazing community. It really does take a village to educate our children from the parents to teachers, administrators, specialists and support personnel. Everyone has an important role in the development of our young people. My passion is helping children learn to read. I see literacy as a pathway to great opportunities for all children. I love reading and I want to pass that passion on to my students! At the University of Oklahoma I began to study education, earning both my bachelor's and master's degrees in Norman. I started teaching in California and had the privilege of teaching in China and Singapore as well. It's been 21 years now and I look forward to many more years to come.
